Scope and Content Note

The Miscellaneous Papers are comprised of those documents which relate to Peabody history, but are so few as to not require a box of their own. They have been filed at the end of the Foster Family Papers.

The Peabody/Salem Express Papers were created by Helen Hagar, the daughter of William C. Hagar, who bought the business in 1895. It was gone from Peabody by 1923. The papers were solicited by John Wells in 1983 and include a handwritten letter to Wells, a memoir of Helen Hagar's memories of the Express, a photograph of her father and the Express. She also included copies of the obituary of Benjamin D. Hill (1791-1869), Helen Hagar's great-grandfather who fought in the War of 1812 and was a prisoner at Dartmoor.

Upon his return to South Danvers from his imprisonment at Dartmoor, Benjamin D. Hill married Eliza Weston in 1818. Their son Benjamin D. Hill married Martha Clark in 1848. They had at least two children, George Dean Hill and E. Florence Hill. It appears another brother was the father of Emma F. Hill, who married William C. Hagar. Helen Clark Hagar was born in 1896. On the back of the obituary Helen Hagar had copied from the Peabody Press, are her hand-written notes. These recount her the stories of Hill, as handed down to her by her parents.

The Upton Papers contain a 1781 agreement between John Upton, Jonathan Tarbel and Jacob Brown with Jonathan Gould for rent of a parsonage in Lynn; a partial 1820 tax receipt signed by Upton, a tax collector; an 1828 deed between James Batchelder and Elijah Upton; and an 1857 letter to Elijah Upton from Austin Phelps, professor at the Andover Theological Seminary, asking for help with their Beneficiary Fund.

The Miscellaneous Papers contain a pair of 1752 lottery tickets signed by James Porter of Danvers; a 1796 deed between Samuel Phippen and Jonathan Osborne; an 1801 inventory of Bartholomew Moulton's estate; an 1804 letter from Molly Dale (or Dole) from London to her children in the United States; an 1812 notice to Nathaniel Felton to summon the militia for duty; an 1820 note; an 1881 note and letter from William H. Lee regarding John Patterson's history; and an 1885 note from the South Danvers National Bank.

They also include a diary by William Blaney Hammond, 1834-1895, written in 1857. It also includes his accounts until 1859.
